

MOODY'S VIEW OF INGERSOLL.

Thinks He Was Driven From Christianity By Abuse and Seeing the Dark Side of Religion.

Springfield, Mass., Telegram to the Chicago Tribune.

D. L. Moody, when asked at Northfield if he had any statement to make in regard to the death of Robert G. Ingersoll, said:

"I am not going to say a word about him. Do you know I never mentioned his name in an address while he was alive, and I don't believe in talking about a man after his death. It does no good to talk against a man. I am sorry for his wife and children, for it was said that he was a kind husband and father, and I don't want to tear open that wound."

"Do you believe that Ingersoll's influence was overrated?"

"I do not wish to talk about it," answered Mr. Moody. "I believe that Ingersoll was driven away from Christianity by the abuse of Christians. He was raised at by them and he saw the dark side of Christianity. He got twisted when he was young."

"Do you believe that he died without any hope of the future?"

"I don't know. I don't see how a man can live without such a hope. It must be horrible. We're not his judges. It is for God alone to judge him. I am told that he was an exemplary man in his home life."

"Paying Employees With Gold."

New York Telegram to Chicago Times-Herald.

Many business houses reported to-day that in paying salaries and other business transactions they were paying out and receiving gold instead of currency or bills.

The fact caused much inquiry, and it developed that while the supply of money is normal there is an unusual scarcity of paper money in this city.

This scarcity of currency, according to officials of the treasury is due principally to the greatly increased prosperity of the country. It was said that there is now more money in circulation, in the hands of the people, East, West and South, than there has been for a long while.

There is $1,000,000,000 of currency in the United States. Of this amount about $18,000,000 or $20,000,000 remains in the Treasury. The outflow of currency has been in the main westward. It is crop time, and the fields have been fertile. Moreover, in shipping money to the West and South, New York correspondents of banks in those sections find that bills are more conveniently handled than gold. Thus the withdrawal of small bills, particularly from this center, has been heavy.

That does not mean a scarcity of money here, though, according to experts, it is said that many banks in the city have on hand a considerable amount of bills of all denominations, but they expect a more marked scarcity of these in the near future.

There is plenty of gold in the East. If one of two hundred establishments pay their employees in gold, Subtreasury officials say, it means simply that there is more money than ever in use and in circulation among the population of the United States.

His Idea of Luxury.

From the New York Tribune.

A story is told of an Arizona prospector, who, after thirty years of hard luck, hardships and privations, finally struck it rich a few weeks ago in the vicinity of Flagstaff, and sold a half interest in his prospect hole for $12,000 cash.

When the money was paid over to him at the bank, the cashier, who had known him for a long time, remarked casually: "Well, Bill, what are you going to do with that money?"

"I'll buy a comfortable and enjoy life now you have got plenty of money?"

"Bill thought a minute in silence, and then, as a pleased expression brightened up his rugged face, he answered:

"I reckon I won't eat nothin' but canned stuff after this."

That was his idea of luxury. He had lived so long on salt pork and heavy biscuits of his own manufacture that canned corn beef and tomatoes and salmon represented to him the highest luxuries that life could afford.

Mr. and Mrs. L. W. Rice returned Monday from a visit of several weeks to relatives in Muhlenberg county.

THE ADMIRAL AT TRIESTE.

Admiral Dewey is Said to Have the Bronzed Look of Perfect Health.

THINKS HE WILL GET AMONG THE HILLS.

A Boat in the Olympia's Nose—How Dewey Missed Meeting Admiral Spang—London Newspapers Print Extraordinary Stories of Admiral and Crew.

New York, July 25.—The Herald's correspondent at Trieste, describing the arrival there of Admiral Dewey, said: Admiral Dewey was dressed in a white duck uniform, with an admiral's shoulder straps and the peak on his cap heavily embroidered with gold. He said:

"To Give the Men a Rest."

"I really came here in order to give the men a chance to recuperate and go on shore. We shall touch, after leaving here, at Naples, Leghorn, Gibraltar and Madeira."

"My health is very good," he said, and pointing to the hills, added, "I think I shall get among them."

"Then you are not going into the interior to the Bohemian springs?" was asked, and he shook his head. The admiral had, in fact, the bronzed look of perfect health.

Will Not Go to Carlsbad.

Dr. H. T. Pearey, of the Olympia, smiled at their rumor that the admiral's ill-health and said: "He is quite well and will not go to Carlsbad."

Admiral Dewey continued: "I am very careful about my diet, and have declined all invitations to banquets on that account."

The doctor told me there had been 30 cases of fever on board the Olympia since leaving Manila, but all are now well."

A Grand Dinner.

Saturday morning Admiral Dewey will call on the governor and Minister Harris, who will give a grand dinner in the evening in honor of him and his officers, which the admiral will attend.

A dent about the size of a man's head in the Olympia's forward plating is the only damage remaining from the Spanish fire.

Missed Meeting Admiral Spang.

Admiral Spang, commander-in-chief of the Austrian navy, came, Wednesday, to meet Admiral Dewey, but was unable to await the arrival of the Olympia, and left Trieste in the evening. Dr. Price, medical inspector, has been relieved from the Olympia.

One of the papers says that although the crew of the Olympia is a motley collection of English, American, Russian, Austrian, French and even Chinese sailors, all are as fond of Admiral Dewey as though they had served a lifetime under him.

Another newspaper article declares that the report that the Austrian government has forbidden any official greeting of Admiral Dewey, out of consideration for the feelings of Spain, is untrue.

New York, July 25.—Robert G. Ingersoll died at his home in Dobbs Ferry, N. Y., of apoplexy.

ROBERT G. INGERSOLL

COL. ROBERT G. INGERSOLL.

Mr. Ingersoll went to his summer home in Dobbs Ferry two days ago apparently in good health. Shortly after his arrival there he complained of a slight indisposition.

He spent the morning in his room and shortly before he was stricken his wife offered to have his luncheon sent up to him so that he would not have to walk down stairs to the dining-room while he was feeling unwell.

He did not feel quite as young as he used to, he guessed he was not yet an invalid, and he would go down with the others. As he finished speaking and was about to rise he felt back into his chair. A physician was immediately summoned, but when he reached the house he found that Mr. Ingersoll had died almost instantly.

The physician did not give the cause of death, but the family believe it was due to apoplexy.

Mr. Ingersoll's wife and two daughters were with him when he died.

Secretary Alger had confidently expected the appointment of Mr. Root, and was very much pleased with the president's choice. This was evinced in the following letter, which Secretary Alger addressed to his successor:

"Washington, D. C., July 21, 1899.—My Dear Mr. Root: All I know is what the newspapers say, that you are to succeed me as secretary of war. Should it come to you I most urgently urge you to make the sacrifice and accept the position. RAINY DAY AMUSEMENTS.

Indoor Games That Will Interest and Instruct the Children.

"In preparing for the summer holiday do not forget the rainy days that will surely come, but provide occupation for the active minds that cannot exhale their restlessness in outdoor exercises," writes Elisabeth Robinson Scoville in the August Ladies' Home Journal. "Take a few games, like the games of 'Artist,' played on the same principle as the favorite 'Authors.' The little cuts reproduce famous pictures, such as the 'Sistine Madonna,' 'Sir Joshua Reynolds' 'Angel Heads,' which are, in reality, portraits of one child, Isabella Kerr Gordon, in different positions. They familiarize the children with the world-famous pictures as well as some good examples of modern art, like the Knaus 'Madonna.' Puzzle books to cut out, painting books, beads to string, kindergarten practice cloth for sewing, paper dolls and soldiers, designs for paper cutting, with a pair of blunt scissors and a paste pot and brush, will furnish congenial employment for the younger ones. If the person in charge will see that they do not get wet, let them have clay pipes and soapy water, and blow bubbles."

Wonderful Discovery.

LUNSFORD, Ala., April 15, 1898. New Spencer Medicine Co. Dear Sirs—I have been troubled with liver and stomach complaint. I had no appetite and my general health was very bad. I took medicine from four different doctors and they failed to do me any good. I got no relief until I began to use your valuable Nubian Tea. I used about two dollars worth of it, and it did me more good than all the medicine I ever took. I have gained thirty-five pounds in weight and my health is very good. I can sleep soundly and my appetite is excellent. I can recommend Planter's Nubian Tea to the world as being a God-send to any community. Any one who doubts this statement can write to me.

Married in Bowling Green.

Two members of the Mammoth Cave Party, from this place stole a march on their friends, while in Bowling Green last week and were quietly married. The happy couple were Mr. Harry Bramwell and Miss Lillie Robinson. They were married last Wednesday in the Park City, while on their way to the Cave, and succeeded in keeping the matter a secret from the rest of the party, as nobody knew nothing of it, until the return trip was being made, and while stopping over in Bowling Green one of the members was informed of the marriage by a resident of that city. Mr. and Mrs. Bramwell passed through Earlington Monday afternoon, enroute to Nashville; the home of the groom, and will return to this city in a few days. They were both well known and popular young people, and have a host of friends who join in congratulations. The Bee in extending congratulations.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven Catarrh to be a constitutional disease, and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from two drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials. Address: F. J. The Way of the World.

This is a peculiar world. One man is saving money to build a house, another trying to sell his for less than it cost him to build it. One is spending all the money he can make in taking his girl to the theatre and sending her flowers with the hope of making her his wife, while his neighbor is using what money he has getting a divorce. One man escapes all the diseases flesh is heir to and gets killed on a railroad. Another escapes with only a scratch and dies with the whooping cough. One man stands off his creditors and goes traveling to the lakes or springs, while another stays at home and pays his debts.—Exchange.

IS IT RIGHT

For an Editor to Recommend Patent Medicines?

The Sylvan Valley News, Brevard, N. C., says: "It may be a question whether the editor of a newspaper has the right to publicly recommend any of the various proprietary medicines which flood the market, yet as a preventive of suffering we feel it a duty to say a good word for Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy. We have known and used this medicine in our family for twenty years and have always found it reliable. In many cases a dose of this remedy would save a physician's visit, and a physician would do well to be depending implicitly on any medicine for a cure; but we do believe that if a bottle of Chamberlain's Diarrhoea Remedy were kept on hand and administered at the inception of an attack much suffering might be avoided and in very many cases the presence of a physician would not be required. At least this has been our experience during the past twenty years." This remedy is for sale by St. Bernard Drug Store, Earlington, Tenn. T. Robinson, Mortons Gap, George King, St. Charles.

Hopkinsville Must Vaccinate.

There are men in the penitentiary who ought to be holding positions of trust and men in positions of trust who ought to be in the penitentiary."

A Narrow Escape.

Thankful words written by Mrs. Ada E. Hart, of Gorton, S. D. Was taken with a bad cold which settled on my lungs; cough set in and finally terminated in Consumption. Four doctors gave me up, saying I could live but a short time. I gave myself up as a lost cause, determined if I could not stay with my friends on earth, I would meet my absent ones above. My husband was advised to get Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, Coughs and Colds. I gave it a trial, took in all eight bottles. It has cured me, and Thank God, I am saved and now a well and healthy woman. I tried bottles free at St. Bernard Drug Store. Regular size 50c and $1.00. Guaranteed or price refunded.

ATROCIOUS

Was the Joke Played on a Hopkinsville Boy.

The police along the lines of the various railroads have been notified to be on the lookout for two young culprits who were engaged in a most atrocious trick at Hopkinsville last Wednesday night, by which a lad twelve years of age, lost his leg. The young scoundrels whom it is supposed committed the outrage are thought to have made their escape in the direction of Evansville, yet nothing has been heard of them. Pinckney Haynes, the 12-year-old boy who lost his leg, left Gracely Wednesday and arrived at Hopkinsville that night.

He was in search of work and without friends. Two boys accompanied him and at night they lay down to rest. The Haynes boy was worn out and footsore from his tramp and soon dropped off to sleep.

While he was asleep his two companions bound one of his limbs in a cloth, and, having saturated the wrapping with kerosene, set it afire. The victim of this attempt at a practical joke was so fatigued that he did not wake until the blaze had commenced to scorch his skin. Then, panic stricken, he lost several valuable seconds before he succeeded in extinguishing the flames.

His hands were badly burned and his leg was roasted from knee to ankle. The burns were so serious that amputation of the limb was found necessary.—Exchange.

The Republicans of Webster county are well pleased with the proceeding of the Lexington convention. In regard to ticket and platform, there is not a dissenting voice among them, and now is the proper time for every Republican of this State to shoulder his gun and form a line of battle against the common enemy of good government and prosperity. Let every one of us do this and see if this coming November, the G. O. P., don't score the grandest victory ever known in this old Commonwealth.

The correct way to do this is to talk our Republicanism on every opportunity, and especially to young men who will cast their first vote the coming election. Mention the crime of 1893 to them, not '73, but something that they are conversant with; show them the immense advance in wages of the vast majority of American workers in all the industries and the general high tide in the wave of Republican prosperity that is sweeping over the country, which is disturbing the Democratic party today and causing them to use such machinery as Mr. Goebel has used.

SUMMER CATARRH

Catarrh of the bowels, because it is most prevalent in the summer months, is called summer catarrh. It surprises many that bowel trouble is catarrhal. Dr. Hartman's books make this plain. Write to the Pe-ru-na Medicine Co., Columbus, O., for them. They tell all about catarrh and how Pe-ru-na cures it wherever located.

"I had chronic diarrhoea for fifteen years," writes Mr. T. E. Miller, Grand Prairie, Tex. "I tried many medicines and doctors in vain. At last Pe-ru-na was recommended, and it relieved and cured me at once."

Mr. John Harting, 633 Main St., Cincinnati, O., writes: "My wife and myself took your Pe-ru-na for chronic diarrhoea and it cured us. No doctor or medicine we tried before helped us."

Mr. Edward Wormack, Lebelier, Tex., writes: "I was troubled by anything in my experience. I took your life to Pe-ru-na, and shall always recommend it to those suffering as I was."

Mr. John Edgerton, 1020 Third Ave., Altoona, Pa., says: "I suffered from dysentery for three years. I took Pe-ru-na and am now well."

DOWN IN THE MINES.

"A Peaceful Demonstration" is what the Evansville Courier called a meeting of the Union miners, when they in large numbers, accompanied by their wives and children, assembled near the John Ingle mine, last Friday, to awe and intimidate by their presence, if possible, the miners then at work in the mine. Yes, it was indeed a peaceful mission they were on, if we lose sight of the truth for awhile. They did not draw their revolvers, which no doubt nine out of ten had concealed about their persons; but they encouraged their children to shout and blowing tin horns and calling the miners, as they emerged from the mine, "scabs" and other vile names. If the truth were known, the sole object of the visit to the mine was by their presence to frighten the miners so they would come out and join the strikers. You don't go to a neighbor and call him bad names when you go on a social visit, and neither did the U. M. W. Workers go there with their heart filled full of love for their brother workman, but approached the mine with deep seated hatred in their hearts, hoping that their presence would so provoke the miners that he in self defense would fire the first shot, thereby opening the way for them for a general attack. But thanks to the sturdy miners there at work, many of whom have worked there for ten years, they did not flinch from their duty and gave no answer to the jeers of the crowd and the strikers. One woman in the crowd there assembled said in one of her mad hysterics: "I would see myself and children starve before I would allow my husband to become a scab." The poor deluded being never stops to think that the Good Book no where instructs her husband to join an organization that makes him a scab or slave under the lash of the agitator and therefore become subject to the destruction now afflicting him.

Foreman Summers says the heavy rain of last Friday night did some damage to the coke works, but no delay was caused.

Goebel's fight against corporations all his life shows plainly that he will be no friend of the laboring man. You cannot cripple one of the State's industries without injuring the men whose brain and muscle produce support for their families.

After a short strike or shut down the Co-operative Coal Company has again started up the mine. When the trouble came the stockholders and directors at once took a hand and called a meeting for the purpose of arriving at a settlement, if possible. The result was when they met together, they came to the conclusion that a new set of officers was desired, and so the positions of President and Secretary were declared vacant, and after mature deliberation, an election was declared in order, and William Walton and Sampson Platt elected to fill the vacancies. Mr. Walton formerly filled the position of president for the company, as did Mr. Platt the office of secretary, and both are well qualified for the offices they have been chosen to fill. If we mistake not the most prosperous times the miners there ever saw was during the management of these officers, and we look for good reports again from that place. The new officials, we believe, favor paying miners standard wages, and not selling coal at cut throat prices.

Foreman Toombs reports great progress being made in the construction of the new slack washer buildings.

Mr. Fat Blair, of South Diamond, was here a while Saturday.

One of the evil results attending the visit of an agitator to this county was last week made known. A young man of Mortons Gap, who has been working in the South Diamond mines, and who was almost broken in heart and purse, came down last week to see the president of the St. Bernard Coal Company and told his tale of woe. He said he had been misled by an agitator—who always seeks first to deceive his victim and then rob him—and upon his misrepresentation joined the U. M. W. and lost his job. Seeing the condition false advice had placed him in he was willing to renounce the order for the sake of work. He was given some wholesome advice by Mr. Atkinson and went on his way rejoicing in the fact that so long as he proved himself worthy he could labor for said company.

Doc Griffin has been quite busy the past week looking out for the walking delegate who is said to be abroad in this county. His former friend Purcell, alias Jones, passed through here and even failed to recognize his former companion with whom he has tramped some distance on the railroad.

The Spottsville miners are out on strike. A few days ago an agitator appeared there professing to be friend who had come there to build up their interests, and after a talk with the operator of the mine and failing to convince him that he knew everything that was worth knowing, he ordered the men out on a strike, because, among other things, the operator refused to recognize the U. M. W. So with them as with thousands of others they have lost a job, while the destroyer of happiness writes to his chief the story of a great victory.

One year of work without any rest is proving rather trying on some of the miners, but little complaint is made when an opportunity is presented to them to work.

Evansville, Ind., July 24.—John Ingle, of the Ingle mines, has been requested by county officials to disarm his non-union men, and has declined. Ingle claims his men have the right to carry arms to protect themselves. The officials say they have no right to force the workers to disarm, and the strikers, claiming the same rights as workers, are arming. The situation is badly strained, and may result in an outbreak at any moment. Union men are threatening to get even with the Sheriff at the next election if he does not disarm the non-union men.

At a meeting yesterday a speaker, in referring to Ingle's threats to prosecute the strikers for contempt of court in disturbing the mine, said: "Tell Judge Matteson and others that if they continue to hound us that we will defy them and all go to jail together. The county would soon tire of feeding us

THE CAVE TRIP.

One of the Members of the Party
Furnishes Some Very INTERESTING BITS OF GOSSIP.

Had a Delightful Time—The Hospitality of the Crescent
City's Crew Appreciated.

One of the members of the Cave Party, thinking it would be of interest to the friends of those who composed the Cave Party, as well as to most of the readers of THE BEE, furnishes the following, jotted down at random, while en route to and from this wonder of Kentucky.

After being escorted around the city of Evansville by the agent for the Evansville & Bowling Green Packet Co., we were taken on board the steamer, Crescent City, and there introduced to the crew. Capt. Howell told us to take charge of the boat, go when and wherever we pleased, and in a few minutes our party were as much at home in the pilot and engine rooms, as they were in the cabin. Mrs. Howell, the captain's good wife, was very pleasant and accommodating, and did all she could to make our trip a delightful one. We steamed out of Evansville at 5:40 p. m., and on our arrival at Spottsville some of the ladies met acquaintances. Here is where you see the first locks on Green River, but it was getting dark, and we did not get the view we would like.

Tuesday afternoon we arrived at Rockport, and there a party joined us going to Bowling Green. There were twenty-one in their party, the same number as in ours, and another queer coincidence, was the fact that there were the same number of married couples in both parties—for a short time at least—as subsequent events will show. They proved to be a merry crowd and we were all soon acquainted—indeed, very much so—as far as two gentlemen in the Earlington party were concerned. They seemed to be carried away with two young ladies from Beaver Dam.

After supper there was a dance—the music being furnished by a good string band, on board for our special benefit. The dance was followed by vocal and piano music, which was very fine. On Wednesday morning at 6 o'clock we steamed into Bowling Green, where we left the boat, and while sight-seeing in the beautiful "Park City," two of our party, Miss Lillie Robinson and Mr. Harry Bramwell, selected this place as their Gretna Green, and gave us the slip, and were quietly married.

We boarded the train at Bowling Green, not knowing we had a newly married couple in our party, and arrived at Glasgow Junction at 10 a. m. Here we stopped for a while, and went out to inspect the ruins of an old hotel, the relic of antebellum days, which was started "before the war" and never completed. Mr. Hopper, the "kiddie friend," of our party, took several views of it. We arrived at the Cave Hotel for dinner, and rested that afternoon. The short route of the cave was traversed that night. The next day two young ladies from New Orleans joined us. They proved themselves to be very pleasant, and Photographer Hopper appointed himself a committee of one to look after one of the young ladies.

Friday evening we left the cave for Bowling Green, where we registered at the Mansard Hotel, and were entertained in good style. Saturday we viewed Bowling Green from end to end, and then it was that some of our party found out about the marriage. The boat came in about 2 o'clock, when we boarded her, and told the captain we were glad to get back home. Sunday is the day the Crescent City makes her stock trip, and it is quite a sight to see them loading stock.

The crew of the Crescent City, Capt. Howell, Pilot Kepling and Dolly, Clerks Kimberly and Howell and Engineer Cecil, have the thanks of the entire party for hospitality and kindness shown them, and all unite in saying that much of the pleasure while on the river was due largely to them. Engineer Cecil no doubt thinks there are other girls, besides that girl "Sue," down in old Kentucky to write about, as he is quite a verse writer, wrote dozens of verses and dedicated a poem to one of the girls.

Clerks Kimberly and Howell had others to go on their watch, so they could talk to our young ladies.

On the return trip we had a much better view of the locks. The scenery was grand, especially on Barren River and will long be remembered.

Nic Toombs, the jolly drummer, was there in all his glory, and kept the "ball rolling," and was the life of the crowd.

The crew of the Crescent City say there was never a more agreeable party on board than ours.

We left Evansville Monday afternoon, and arrived back in our own little home, feeling that we had a fine trip and one that all enjoyed very much.

10. "He knelt upon his knees three times a day and prayed and gave thanks before his God, as he did aforetime." A poor time to give thanks might say, when his enemies were seeking his life with full determination to kill him. Some would have been full of fear and would have thought it wise and a very laudable precaution to have at least closed his eyes during prayer time, but this man of God who lived before God and not before men simply kept on doing as he had done aforetime.

11. "Then these men assembled and found Daniel praying and making supplication before his God." A hundred and twenty-two against one, and the king on their side (unwittingly against Daniel), there seemed no hope for Daniel. His hope was in God, not in man, his mind was staid on God and therefore at peace (Isa. xlii, 8), and he feared not to be found praying.

12. "The king answered and said, The thing is true according to the law of the Medes and Persians, which saith, That whosoever shall say a word against the king, he shall be put in the den of lions, and the king had to acknowledge that it was even so." When asked to sign the decree, the king's vanity was appealed to, a point on which many are weak, and he probably had not the remotest thought of the possible consequences.

13. "That Daniel, which is of the children of the captivity of Judah, regardeth not himself, O king, nor the decree that thou hast signed." They would have him think that they esteemed him very highly, but that Daniel, the Jew, despised both him and his decree. The confession in verse 4, that they could not do anything nor fault in him, makes us think of the confession of Pilate concerning Christ (John xviii, 38; xix, 4, 6).

14. "Then the king when he heard these words was sore displeased with himself and set his heart on Daniel to deliver him: and he labored to give him a sign, for he loved Daniel, and esteemed him, and saw how his enemies were seeking his ruin and how he himself had unintentionally become a partner with them. It must have been a surprise to the presidents and princes that Darius was displeased with himself rather than with Daniel, and that he sought to kill Daniel they were grieving thinking. It is well to know the mind of the king and to say II Sam. xv, 15.

15. "No decree nor statute which the king establisheth may be changed." For the third time these men assembled with determination to kill Daniel (verses 6, 11), each time pressing their cruel and unchristian policy. Daniel might truly have said, "They hate me with cruel hatred." "They hated me without a cause" (Ps. lxxv, 4). How persistent are the schemes of the wicked to destroy life! Our blessed Lord came to give life and to give abundance of it (John x, 10).

16. "The king, whom thou serveest continually, He will deliver thee." Thus did Darius, compelled by his own law to put to death the lions, seek to comfort him. The law cannot save any one, and it is to God (Gal. iii, 11, 21). Neither can men always accomplish all it desires to, for Darius loved Daniel, and a king he had great power. If Darius had loved Daniel enough to take his place and go to the lions and die in his stead, he might have saved Daniel; this our blessed Lord did for the Son of God loved me and gave Himself for me (Gal. ii, 20).

17. "And the king rose up straight and laid upon the mouth of the den, and the king sealed it with his own signet." Jeremiah said, "They have cut off my life in the dungeon and cast a stone upon my head" (Jer. li, 68). Both Jeremiah and Daniel and every good prophet were typical of the greatest of all the prophets, the Lord Jesus Christ, who died in our stead, and His body being placed in the tomb, the tomb was sealed (Math. xxvii, 66). In each case the sealing was to make sure the purpose of the enemy, but in each case purpose and wrought the doom of those who thus served the adversary.

18. "Then the king went to his palace and passed the night fasting. He fasted, nor did he allow himself to be entertained with music. His heart was sore on account of Daniel's peril, and he longed for the morning that he might know Daniel's God had delivered him, from the lions. The love that would deliver if it could, but Daniel himself helped, so to do, a mighty thing and yet is but a faint shadowing of the love that gave the only begotten Son of God to die for our sins.

19. "Then the king arose very early in the morning and went in haste unto the den of lions," so anxious was he to know of his friend's welfare. But what shall we say of our Lord, who continued all night in prayer, who rose a great while before day and went out to a solitary place to pray, and who in the garden was in agony in prayer that He would not be taken, but He went through it and was great drops of blood (Luke vi, 12; xlii, 44; Mark i, 35).

20. "Daniel, servant of the living God, is thy God whom thou serveest continually able to deliver thee from the lions?" Thus cried Darius with a lamentable voice, hoping to get yet wondering if he would receive an answer. Daniel's friends knew that the God whom they served was able to deliver them from the furnace, but that whether they delivered them from going into the furnace or not He certainly would deliver them from the hand of Nebuchadnezzar.

21. "My God hath sent His angel and hath shut the lions' mouths that they have not hurt me." With a kind word to the king, thus replied Daniel to the glory of God, and Darius was exceedingly glad and commanded to take up Daniel out of the den. Better far to be in the lions' den or the fiery furnace with God than in the best possible circumstances of earthly comfort without Him.

22. "So Daniel was taken up out of the den, and no manner of hurt was found upon him, because he believed in his God." The helpful thoughts from this and the concluding verses of the chapter are more than space will allow us to give, but may a few suggest more to you by inquiry. The morning of resurrection will prove that no real evil has ever befallen an out of God. The ones of God shall perish in that morning (I Thes. i, 7-10). By Daniel's faith the living God was honored in all the known world through the episode of Darius.

Into the Depths.

The tempest is over, the breakers are singing—Are singing a song from the depths of the sea—And this is the message the glad waves are bringing: From the depths of His love, my God loveth me.

Yes, my God loveth me, As sung by the sea.

The sun on those depths is shining the bright—The alvery waves roll in peace o'er the sea. So Thy love seems the deepest, my heart is the lightest—When I read that my sins are hidden by Thee.

Yes, hidden by Thee In the depths of the sea.

As the stones on the shore like snowdrops are lying—On the beach by the waves from the depths of the sea. So wash me, O cleanse me, may I ever be crying—From the depths of Thy love, my God, wash me—

Yes, my God, wash me, As those gems of the sea.—Philadelphia Ledger.

Kentucky Census Officers.

An agreement for the distribution of the census patronage in Kentucky has been reached at Washington, by which Senator Deboe names supervisors in the first, third, fourth, fifth and tenth districts; Senator Lindsay in the second, sixth, seventh and eighth, and Representative Pugh and Boring in the ninth and eleventh, respectively. All have made their selections except Senator Lindsay, who is now in Frankfort. The fifty-seven positions allotted to Kentucky in the census bureau will be divided so that each Democratic congressman will get two appointments and each Republican congressman six. The remaining twenty-seven places will be divided between Senators Lindsay and Deboe. A. C. Moore, of Marion, the home of Senator Deboe, has been appointed supervisor of the census for the first district.

Suffering Sorrow.

Over and over again the old truth comes back to us that no man is good for much till he has suffered a great sorrow. The baptism of pain is one of the instrumentalities which God uses for purging away the dross of our nature and making us fit to be partakers of the inheritance of the saints in light. Not those who have escaped the fiery trial, but those who have gone through it and come out unharmed and glorified are to be envied. God knows what is best for us. Therefore He sends first one affliction and then another upon us. Sometimes, because He sees it necessary, He lifts the very floodgate and allows waves after waves of misfortune to sweep over us. If we have the right stuff in us, we shall be helped and not harmed by these seeming calamities.—Nashville Christian Advocate.

The Difference.

Many appear outwardly righteous before men. They are honest, upright, influential, respected, cultured and many of them wealthy, but when externals are removed and the secrets of the heart are known it shall be found that interiorly one belongs in the heavens, the other in the infernal. "One shall be taken, and the other left"—Rev. E. D. Daniels in Helper.

A Memorial in Westminster Abbey to George Washington.

From Harper's Weekly.

The approach of the hundredth anniversary of George Washington's death is noticeable by the increased interest of Englishmen in the memory of the most distinguished American. Mr. Gladstone was accustomed to speak of George Washington as perhaps the most perfect figure in history. The better that his name and fame, character and career, are known and appreciated in England the better will be the good understanding between reasonable Englishmen and that portion of the American people who still adhere to the main lines of Washington's Americanism. Although George Washington never saw England, he was essentially English in character, and so clearly embodied the constitutional and liberal opinion on this side that before long a national memorial in or near Westminster Abbey will probably be an accomplished fact.

The Need of the Republic.

The essential failure of our Democracy hitherto and its supreme danger for the coming of time are that opportunity is so far closed to the best wisdom and strength; that its representative places are so largely filled by the cunning and the mean which have these good qualities; that politicians wield the weapons and sway the forces of statesmen. The prime need of the republic is a revolution which shall open the way of fitness to all leadership and close the way to raffishness, which shall link opportunity inseparably to wisdom and strength.—Charlton T. Lewis.

Joining the Church.

The profession of faith is what is commonly called joining the church. The pastor is exceedingly anxious for his hearers thus to join the church—that is, to cast in their lot with the people of God so that they may inherit and enjoy the fulfillment of the promises of grace in full salvation. In the act of joining the church there is secured the full possession of the field with the hid treasure which cannot be had otherwise. It is to be in the ark of safety, outriding the flood of sin and danger.—Reformed Church Messenger.

Be Cheerful.

Why should a person make himself a nuisance? What gain is there in grime and sourness and unsociability? Few people care to listen to whining and complaint. On the whole, the world uses us as well as we deserve. It is very hard for the defeated to admit this, but it is a fact nevertheless, and if only admitted one of the chief reasons for defeat is removed. A cheerful philosopher is an important element of success. He who is perpetually suspecting others of ill treating him and keeping him down is not of less importance to the world around him than he is to himself. But he can easily test it by asking how much he himself dwells upon the condition of others. By as much as their grievances do not particularly concern him by so much his own are matters of indifference to them. So let him be pleasant, bury his sorrows, pocket his affronts, make himself agreeable, trust to Providence and thankfully take what comes.—Zion's Herald.

Human Brotherhood.

The great truth of human brotherhood implies positive obligations. The fact that every one has some influence, that it is possible for him to be useful to his fellows, implies that it is his duty to exert his influence in the right direction and to assist his brethren as opportunity may offer. We owe our fellow men not only material assistance, if needed, but also a helpful spirit and uplifting example. We owe humanity an interest in its well being and pure, generous, unselfish personal life. And, above all, we owe to the individuals who compose society, brotherly tenderness, kindness and love. These things all can give, and he who withholds them will not hold gifts.—Universalist Leader.

More variety, thought, life, put into the ordinary public service of the church, would be profitable as well as attractive. It is well that so many have formed in youth the habit of church attendance. If it were not so, we fear our congregations would be smaller than they are.

Search, question, study, prove all things, are the watchwords of the true disciple.—Christian Uplook.

Jolly's Hard Luck.

From the Madisonville Hustler.

The friends of Hon. George W. Jolly, regardless of party prejudice, will regret to hear that his financial embarrassment has culminated in the foreclosure of the mortgage on his residence in Owensboro and his farm in Breckinridge county, leaving him penniless in his old age. Mr. Jolly is too clean a man and too honest in his methods to make a success in politics as politics is conducted these days.
